EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., (38) Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

FOOT WEAR.
In buying Boots, Shoes, Slippers, or any other kind of foot wear, people will go where they can find the largest assortment to select from, and where they can get the best goods for the least money. Such advantages can be found at the best in an establishment that deals exclusively in foot wear. Almost every general store keeps a few boxes of boots and shoes, but at Dentler's shoe store the stock consists entirely of this line of goods. Boots, Shoes, Slippers, Pumps, Rubbers, Sandals, Gaiters, &c., for Men, Women and Children, occupy shelf after shelf, and even the floor of the large room is stocked with boxes. Here the customer can find all styles, all sizes, all prices, from the heaviest cow hide, to the finest kid, with prices as low as can be found anywhere for the same class of goods. We are provided with implements for removing pegs, and for resetting buttons, so that our goods are made comfortable, and made to fit any foot.
Among the special lines are the W. L. Douglas Shoe for gentlemen, Curtis & Wheeler's Ladies' Fine Shoes, the celebrated Towanda Boot, for men and boys. No trouble to show goods.

BILIOUSNESS.

"I unhesitatingly add my testimony to the great benefits to be derived from Simmons Liver Regulator. I was afflicted for several years with disordered liver, which resulted in a severe attack of Jaundice. I had good medical attendance, but it failed to restore me to the enjoyment of my former health. I then tried the most renowned physicians of Louisville, Ky., but all to no purpose, whereupon I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I found immediate benefit from its use, and it ultimately restored me to the full enjoyment of health." A. H. SHIRLEY, Richmond, Ky...."I most cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from bilious attacks or any disease caused by a disarranged state of the liver."..... W. R. BERNARD, Kansas City, Mo.

MY WIDOW.

She was the meekest and most docile little personage you ever saw. That, of course, was before she became my widow.

She was very pretty, too, with pink apple cheeks, and eyes of that peculiar translucent beryl green that you see so seldom, a slender lithe figure, and a step as noiseless as if she wore the famous shoes of silence.

"Depend upon it, old fellow, she's married you for your money," said Fitz-Brown.

"It doesn't stand to reason that a girl of eighteen should tie herself to a fat old heathen of fifty-four unless there is some such motive lurking underneath."

"Fitz-Brown," I broke in irritably, "you're a fool!"

"I may be a fool," answered that gentleman calmly, "but a single fool is not so bad as a married fool, in any point of view you choose to take."

There was no use in arguing with Fitz-Brown. He was a stubborn, opinionated old fellow, at best, and he was determined not to like Lucilla from the very first.

How he did exult when he came down to my office and told me that Harry Sykes was spending the evening with Lucilla—that same reckless young good-for-naught who had been wont to hang around her before we were married. And Lucilla had told me she was going to take tea with her mother.

Nevertheless I put on a bold face.

"Well, let him spend the evening," said I. "Where's the harm?"

"Yes, but—but the curtains were not drawn, and—and it isn't necessary for him to sit on the same sofa, with his arm around her waist."

I went straight home, but Mr. Sykes had departed, and Lucilla was darning my stockings by the fire.

"Lucilla," said I sternly, "I must forbid any more of Harry Sykes's visits here."

"Yes, Josiah," said my wife; "Harry is rather tiresome."

"And you will please receive no more young gentleman visitors in my absence."

"No, Josiah."

"The fact is, Lucilla, I am afraid you read too many novels."

"Perhaps I do," said my wife meekly.

"I will bring up a set of 'Rollins' Ancient History' to-morrow and some sermons for you to read. All lighter literature must be banished at once."

"Certainly, Josiah."

Lucilla was preternaturally affectionate the next two or three days. She hung round me in the most bewitching manner, sewed my shirt-buttons on, ran for my slippers, and would insist on toasting the bread herself, until her pretty face was the color of a scarlet tomato, "because cook is so careless, and dear Josiah likes his toast browned just so."

"What shall I order for dinner, dear? The butcher's man is here. Steaks or a roasting piece?"

"I don't care," I answered mechanically. "Suit yourself."

"But you know your wishes are my pleasure, love."

"Steaks, then."

"And about the pudding, sweet? Shall I tell cook to make a real old English plum, or would you prefer baked suet?"

Really it was very nice to hear one's wishes consulted in this sort of Lucilla tied the muffler around my neck.

manner. And when I departed for the office, Lucilla herself stood on tiptoe to tie the worsted round my neck.

"For if you should take cold, dearest, and anything should happen, it would break your dear little wife's heart."

Under these harmonious circumstances that sudden voyage to India came like a thunderbolt across the serene horizon of our matrimonial life.

"How shall I live without you six months, my dearest?" sobbed Lucilla, her lovely beryl eyes swimming in tears.

But we cannot always control necessity, and, after a mournful farewell, in which my wife fairly succumbed and went into hysterics, I departed on necessary business for the firm of Miner and Mortlake, I myself being the aforesaid Mortlake.

How it happened that my name was erroneously lugged into the details of that massacre in which the barbarous coolies murdered so many of the foreign population, when I was actually ten miles further up the country, I never knew, and then my long fever, during which I found it impossible to write or obtain an amanuensis, served to complicate matters. When I recovered, I resolved to proceed immediately back to my native land.

"I'll not write," I mentally decided. "I'll surprise Lucilla, bless her dear little heart! How delighted she will be!"

So I took passage in the first English steamer that sailed.

Half-way across, we hailed an English craft, outward bound, and there was an exchange of newspapers and other civilities.

As I unfolded a London paper, scarce more than six weeks old, I saw, under the obituary notices, my own name.

So I was supposed to be dead.

It is a sudden shock to read of your own death, and calculate how long you have been under ground, and not by any means an agreeable one.

"I don't think I'm dead," said I stretching out my arms and legs, giving myself a pinch, and feeling the strong pulses that projected healthy currents through my veins, "and yet this evidence is certainly very convincing—that I was murdered by barbarous natives on the night of the 25th of May. Poor, dear little Lucilla! how inconsolable she must be!"

So it happened, you see, that I was going home to comfort my widow.

It was late in the afternoon when we entered port, and the shadows of the autumn evening were gathering round as I crept up the doorsteps of my mansion, and entered, stealthily as a robber.

Were the shutters down, the windows draped, the house dressed in seemly habiliments of woe? Not at all; lights glowed brilliantly behind the curtains, gay voices echoed from the parlor, and—could my ears have deceived me? No, surely that was Lucilla's laugh ringing merrily on the air.

"A little hysterical, perhaps," I thought, but nevertheless, instead of boldly entering the drawing-room and confronting my wife, I instinctively passed on to the glazed extension room behind, communicating, by draperies of silk, with the larger apartment—a room where I had been wont to keep my books and which I dignified by the title of "library."

It was but faintly lighted by the borrowed lustre of the drawing-room chandelier, and as I entered I stumbled over something—it was my own portrait, ignominiously turned with its face to the wall.

I crept forward with an ominous foreboding—a sudden disagreeable recollection of Fitz-Brown's croaking pred ctions. But as I put aside the Tyrian folds of the curtain a most unwelcome vision met my eye.

Lucilla in her widow's weeds.

But she was not alone. Close beside her on the sofa, actually playing with her soft little white hand, and bending devotedly over the border of the widow's cap sat Harry Sykes!

"Come, Lucilla," he said impatiently, "you have tantalized me long enough. When will you give me this little treasure of a hand and let me call you mine?"

"What nonsense, Harry!" said my widow coquettishly, but she didn't withdraw her hand, "when you know my husband hasn't been dead six months!"

"Oh, hang the old buffer! Who cares whether he has been dead six days of six months? He's gone, thanks to the coolies, and he's willed you all the cash. You know very well you never cared for him, Lucilla."

My widow did not contradict this sweeping statement.

"But the look of the thing, you know, dear Harry. Don't squeeze my hand so."

"Lucilla, don't you love me?"

"Of course I do," with a charming little pout.

"Then, my heart's queen, what is the use of keeping me in suspense?"

"Really, Harry," she murmured, "I don't know what to say."

"Then say yes."

Lucilla's head drooped until the widow's cap nearly touched her companion's shoulder.

"Yes," she murmured at last.

Human nature could stand this no longer. I dashed aside the purple silk draperies, and entered precipitately on the scene—quite an unexpected addition to the dramatis personæ.

"Not so fast, madam, if you please!" I cried with a sort of demoniac exultation. "I may be an 'old buffer,' and you may 'never have cared' for me, but nevertheless you and Mr. Sykes here are getting along altogether too smoothly."

Lucilla sprang to her feet with an eldritch scream.

"It's a ghost! it's Josiah's ghost!"

"No, madam, it's not Josiah's ghost—it's his living self. You though you had got rid of me, did you An awkward mistake to make, under the circumstances. Walk out of this house, sir, and never let me see your countenance again!"

Mr. Sykes obeyed, sheepishly enough.

"As for you, madam," I said sternly, turning to my sobbing wife—no longer widow—"you may go home to your mother. I want no more of your treacherous wiles. Fitz-Brown was right!"

Vehemently ringing the bell I ordered a carriage and packed the bewildered woman off before she could remonstrate.

That was the end of my matrimonial experience, for Lucilla has never ventured to return to the shadow of my roof.

Fitz-Brown and I are keeping house together, after an orthodox bachelor fashion. I think Fitz is sincerely sorry for me; but he has never yet insulted me with the truism:

"I told you so."

IN YELLOW SILK.

"I don't like the looks of him!" said the Widow Clegg.

"You don't say so!" said Aunt Hannah, smoothing down her gingham apron in a disturbed way.

They sat in the plainly-furnished, little sitting-room, this soft spring afternoon, looking out through the open window on to the front porch, with its climbing vines and its yellow-painted floor.

It was a charming picture which the window framed: A pretty young girl, in a perfectly-fitting and wonderfully-becoming blue cambric, with her blonde hair piled high, and falling in fluffy thickness to her eyes; and at her side, pointing towards the easel before him, brush and palette in hand, a much-be-daubed rag and a profusion of small tin color-tubes on the floor beside him, a pleasant-faced young man, with dark eyes and brown curly hair.

"It ain't that he ain't good-looking enough," Mrs. Clegg continued. "He's too good-looking and too fine-appearing—that's where 'tis."

"Oh, well," said Aunt Hannah soothingly, "I dunno!"

"I shouldn't feel so," said Mrs. Clegg. "If Janie warn't—well, eat up with him. He can't want nothing of her, Hannah."

"Well, I dunno," said Aunt Hannah, looking from the young man to her niece anxiously. "No, I s'pose 'tain't no way likely."

"Likely!" Mrs. Clegg repeated. "'Tain't to be thought on. I wish I hadn't took him to board, H

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1887.

Tuesday, November 8, is election day. Every Democrat in the county should feel it his duty to vote. If this is done, the majority will be larger than ever before. It is possible to carry the State, and if there is a full Democratic vote, such a result is probable. The committeemen and local candidates should work from now on to bring out a full vote, and every Democrat should constitute himself a committee of one to see that his neighbors turn out on election day.

BROOKS HIGH LICENSE LAW.

The Brooks High License Law is exercising the minds of the lawyers in every judicial district in the state, as it has become necessary to formulate and adopt a code of Rules for practice under it. All applications for license must be made and heard at a time to be fixed by a Rule of Court, and shall be for one year from a date fixed by Rule of Court.

Under old laws licenses could be and were granted at the first or second terms of Court in any year; and they expired in February or May as the case might be. This can no longer be done, and to fix a time least inconvenient to parties, witnesses and Court, and at the same time to prevent losses by lapses of licenses or duplicates thereof, are matters of no little difficulty: and indeed in spite of the best consideration that can be given to the subject some losses must occur, which the court is powerless to remedy.

The law is imperfect in its details and some of its provisions, and in many respects very inartificially drawn; and how much of the old legislation remains and how much is repealed will occasion great controversy for some years. There is no general repealing clause in the Act, and all pre-existing laws not supplied by it remain in force. There is no provision, for instance, about the transfer of a license granted under the previous laws, but the courts have not hesitated to transfer licenses heretofore granted.

The Act is so drawn as to be not subject to any logical system of construction It does not in any place require that the applicant shall have bed, house accommodations, or stable room; and yet in the fifth section it requires the petition to set out that the place to be licensed is necessary for the accommodation of the public; and in the seventh section the court may refuse the license when such license is not necessary for the accommodation of the public, and the entertainment of strangers or travelers. Under this, must the beds, house room and stabling be provided and shown to the Court as by the old law or not? Is the old law, in this regard repealed or does it remain in force? No man can tell.

Again the wording is not uniform. In the first section the words are "Any house, room or place, hotel, inn or tavern;" in the four h section they are "all licensed and unlicensed hotels, taverns, inns, restaurants or saloons," three or four times over; in the eighth section we return to "any house, room or place, hotel, inn or tavern," and in the eighteenth section the same words are used.

It is true in the fourth section the words designating the sort of place where sales are made, are or seem to be restricted to cities of the first class; and yet no doubt, what we call restaurants, saloons or eating houses must be included and licensed under the words in the first section, to-wit, "any house, room or place." A competent lawyer drawing a highly penal statute would have used words and names with great care, and with a view to protect as well as warn the public and individuals. "Said petition," in the fifth section must refer to the words "for a license as aforesaid in any city or county," and they all to a license "to keep or maintain any house, room or place, hotel, inn or tavern," where vinous, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors, or any admixture thereof may be sold.

Now if these words mean anything, they must mean to draw and acknowledge some distinction as existing between what is designated as "any house, room or place, hotel, inn or tavern;" and manifestly a license may be asked for and granted for a "room" in which liquors may be sold, but in which neither the strangers nor travelers can procure accommodation or entertainment. And so equally of a "house" or a "place." For a license to keep or maintain any one of these is contemplated by the Act, and "the accommodation of the public" is what the petition requires, and all it requires.

If he wants a license to keep or maintain a house, room or place to sell vinous, spirituous, malt or brewed liquors, then he does not need to provide himself with the beds, house room or stabling required to keep or maintain a hotel, inn or tavern for the accommodation of the public, and the entertainment of strangers or travelers. The accommodation under the fifth section might be, would be, the convenience of procuring a glass of liquor; but the entertainment of strangers or travelers requires food, rooms, beds, privacy, stabling, hay, oats and a stable man.

These are a few of the most obvious difficulties, and no doubt the practical working of the law will develop more and more grievous ones, which do not lie within the line of this discussion and which therefore are not considered. F.

The Condemned Anarchists.

An application was made to Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, last week, by Roger A. Pryor and B. F. Butler, counsel for the Chicago Anarchists now under sentence of death, for a writ of error to the Illinois state courts. The hearing was referred to the full bench, and on Monday Chief Justice Waite fixed Thursday for hearing argument as to whether any points were raised in the trial that give the United States Supreme Court any jurisdiction in the case. The condemned men have but little hope of interference on the part of the Supreme court.

An iron column, twenty-three feet long, and weighing over 6,000 pounds, part of a new lighthouse being built, was recently landed at Bishop Rock, England, and a storm coming up, was left lashed by a half-inch chain at each end to strong eyebolts. Three days afterward the workmen returned and found that the column had been tossed up by the waves twenty feet to the top of the rock where it was swaying about like a piece of timber.

Don Cameron on Cleveland.

St. Louis Republican.

Said Colonel Joe Rickey at the Southern last night: "I asked Don Cameron some time ago what he thought of Cleveland. 'The only thing that can beat him,' said he, 'is some sort of a financial panic which can be laid at the doors of the administration. In such a case he would probably be beaten, no matter whom we might put against him. As it stands now however, I think he is sure of re-election. He has shown himself to be an honest, independent and fearless official and the predictions that financial ruin would follow his election have been disproved.' 'Do you,' I asked, 'talk this way to members of your own party?' Why not?' he answered. 'I have no desire to cheat them or to cheat myself; the conditions are plain.'"

Miss Annie Miller has resumed her musical studies in Philadelphia.

Mr. Frank Forsman, of Williamsport, spent a few hours in town Wednesday.

Col. B. K. Jamison, the Philadelphia banker, was in town the forepart of this week.

J. F. Honness, of Newark, N. J., visited friends in this place the latter part of last week.

Miss Laura Waller landed in New York on Sunday morning, after a six weeks' trip in Europe.

Messrs. Connel and Harmon, of the English Opera Company, assisted in the music at the Episcopal church last Sunday morning.

W. H. Brooke has resigned his position in G. A. Clark's book store, and has accepted that of book-keeper for Paul E. Wirt.

Mrs. E. W. Elwell returned to her home in Towanda last Friday, after a short visit to relatives here. Miss Rebecca Armstrong accompanied her.

J. W. Perry, the popular proprietor of Elk Run Hotel in Sugarloaf, was in town on Monday. He reports but few deer killed yet this season.

The Wrens are coming!

Pheasants are sold in town for 75 cents a pair.

Hollowe'en falls this year on Monday, 31st inst.

A teachers' examination will be held at Light Street, Oct 29.

The squeal of the dying porker will soon be heard through the land.

A number of our citizens attended the Washingtonville Fair last week.

Moyer Bros. are building a large addition to their barn near the court house.

Some of the street crossings on Main street have been raised several inches.

The Wrens will appear at the Opera House in "Sweethearts" Monday evening.

Mr. John Wolf is having his dwelling on Centre street repaired, giving the outside a coat of paint.

The first snow of the season here fell last Friday night. A few flakes fell also on Saturday morning.

Oliver W. Wren Comedy Company at the Opera House Monday evening, Oct. 31st, in "Sweethearts." Don't fail to see them.

Squirrel hunters are now roaming over the mountain, but the squirrels do not seem to suffer much.

Two large trees in the court-house yard were taken down this week. This will give an unobstructed view of the town-clock.

A. Solleder has just received another lot of good night singing imported German canaries, also some male Florida mocking birds. 2t*

Deputy collector Buckingham is kept constantly busy with the duties of his office. He is obliged to be away from home much of the time.

The Award List occupies a large space in this issue, but it is interesting reading matter, as everybody is anxious to know who were awarded premiums.

The wood work in the court room is nearly completed. It will soon be ready for painting. Eli Jones is making a good job of the carpenter work.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite Free Masonry was held here Thursday and Friday of last week. A number of Masons from a distance were in town.

Nathan Fleckenstine, of Orangeville, received a deer from his son Joseph of Westport, Clinton county, on Thursday of last week. It was a fine doe, and the first of the season in this section.

The ladies of the Baptist Mite Society will give an oyster supper, on Friday evening, Oct. 28, commencing at six o'clock, at the house of Mr. James Rice on West Rock street. The public are respectfully invited to attend.

A tramp umbrella mender had his leg burned at the furnace on Monday night, while intoxicated. On Tuesday morning he was looking for a justice of the peace whom he wanted to commit him to jail for three months for vagrancy.

Several parties from town attended the grand ball and promenade concert at the new Armory Hall, Wilkesbarre, on Wednesday evening. The Armory is a fine, large brick building, handsomely finished both inside and out, and will accommodate several thousand people.

Dr. Shattuck's Rest Cure Specific for kidney, liver, blood and malarial diseases is not a patent medicine, it is the Aletris Farimosa Compound (Ague Root) a reliable prescription and may be relied upon where all other kidney and liver remedies fail. For sale at Moyer Bros.

The audience at the Opera House on Saturday night was greatly annoyed by the loud conversation carried on by four young men during the singing. People who can't appreciate good music, and who don't know enough to keep quiet so that others may enjoy it, ought to stay out, or be put out.

The Austin, Texas, Gazette says: "Mr. Oliver Wren, in his usual happy style assumed the character of "Bobby Grimes," and represented the characteristics of a "Booby" to perfection. His make-up was excellent, and his very action in perfect keeping with the character. He was very funny, and has added a score of new friends to his already long list in this community."

Bloomsburg Opera House, Monday evening, October 31st.

The Bloomsburg Car Co. commenced work last week on an order of 250 hopper bottom cars for the Iron Car Co. The works had been suspended because of a little difference between the workmen. This was satisfactorily adjusted, and the works are now in full operation. The present contract will occupy about three months; but they have other contracts in view, so that the workmen can look for work all winter.

Newspaper subscription is one of the things that most people pay but little attention to, and yet there is not a man in the county who would like to have his neighbors know that he takes a paper and does not pay for it. We have a few subscribers who pay no attention to our repeated notices of overdue subscription, but they would be very indignant if we should publish their names. We may have to do it some of these days.

The Republican must be getting somewhat alarmed about the Commissioner fight when it is willing to recognize a single virtue in the Democratic party. In its last issue it says that republicans "should learn a lesson from the democrats in their steadfast support of the regular nominees." We are violating no confidence when we say that there are a great many other things in which the republicans might pattern after the democrats with great credit to themselves.

Mr. Joe Wells, who has finished his apprenticeship as a jeweler with Mr. Louis Bernhard, left last Monday for Reading where he has secured a position in a large jewelry establishment. He is an accomplished jeweler and will certainly succeed in life. Mr. Wells is the eleventh apprentice that has served his time under Mr. Bernhard's instruction and it may be said to the credit of both apprentice and master that there never was an abuse of trust or an act of dishonesty in all that number. All served their full term and the kindliest feeling always existed. Nearly all of them are successful business men and rank among the first in their several locations.

L. M. Kelchner's display of penmanship at our county fair was the source of much comment. It consisted of card writing and flourishing, flourished horses, pen drawing of frog, boy and girl, and flowers. The specimen of a wood frame around which was entwined an ivy, was exceptally fine. The formation of every line was as perfect as that of nature itself. Mr. Kelchner is certainly a genius with the pen, and we are surprised that he is content to remain here. He should be at the head of a school for penmanship.

Read what the Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin says of the appearance of the Oliver W. Wren Combination in that city:

There was a good sized audience at the Academy of Music last night to witness the old but popular play "Rip Van Winkle." as produced by Mr. Oliver W. Wren. The Entertainment was given under the auspicies of Canton Ridgely, I. O. O. F. and was a pronounced success. Mr. Wren's conception of Irving's Vagabond of the Catskills is good and the appreciation of the audience was displayed by frequent applause. The support was made up of a Company of excellent merit.

GEORGE A. CLARK, P. M.

Miss Annie Brobst, daughter of Mr. David Brobst, was married to Mr. James B. Martin at the bride's home, on Thursday morning of last week at eleven o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. P. Manhart. There were a large number of invited guests present, who enjoyed themselves very much and extended their congratulations to the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Martin took a two weeks' tour through the State of New York. Upon their return they will make their residence at Beaver Valley.

Quite a surprise was given to Mr. J. D. Shaffer, the manager of Music Hall, on Tuesday evening. It was his birthday, and his wife conceived the idea of giving a genuine surprise to "Jim." Invitations were quietly given, and in the evening about two hundred guests assembled in the hall. The husband was kept in total ignorance of the affair until he reached the hall. His surprise can be better imagined than described. The evening was spent in dancing, and all separated reluctantly, and with the hope of soon being invited to a similar gathering in Music Hall. The best wishes were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer, witn the hope of long life and happiness.

MESSRS. EDITORS.

A statement intended to mislead the public as to the merits of sewing machines appeared in some of last week's county papers. I refer to the assertion that "the Wheeler & Wilson sewing machines took the first four premiums at the recent county fair at Bloomsburg." Reference to the printed Premium List shows that there were no such premiums offered on sewing machines. Under Class 25 I find that a "Bronze Medal" and nothing else is offered for "Display of Sewing machines." The Award list published this week shows that a bronze medal was awarded the Wheeler & Wilson, and precisely the same premium was awarded the White, Domestic and Standard Rotary machines exhibited by me. I make this statement in justice to myself, and in order that the public may not be deceived.

Bloomsburg Oct. 25. J. SALTZER.

Steam heating for private and public purposes is becoming an economic question which is receiving attention in many of the towns and cities of the State. In Wilkes-Barre—the heart of the coal fields—steam heating was introduced last winter, and, it is claimed, proved a success, both on the score of economy and sufficiently of heat. It is certainly much cleaner and more healthy than the ordinary furnace and stove heating arrangements, doing away with the dust and gases which emanate from the old mode of heating. Then there are no ashes or coal to be handled in the private residences or other places using steam heat. Even if the expense was somewhat greater than the "old way," the cleanliness, healthfulness and comfort of the "new system" would commend it to public favor. But it is confidently claimed that it is much cheaper than heating direct from coal, besides being cleaner and less troublesome. The town of Bloomsburg introduced steam heating last winter and it is claimed works well. Steam is conveyed in pipes from one to two miles and delivered to different consumers in the same way that gas or water is delivered. If there is anything that will relieve us from the extortionate prices on coal we pray for its speedy introduction.—Bradford Argus.

The Montague-Turner Gem English Opera Company sang Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" and the last act of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" at the Opera House last Saturday night to a small but appreciative audience. They should have been greeted with a packed house and "standing room only." Those who did not attend missed hearing some of the most beautiful music that has ever been heard in Bloomsburg. Miss Annis Montague, the soprano, has a beautiful voice of great power and range, and she rendered the part of Arline and Leonora in a charming manner. Miss Zoe De Vielli, the contralto, has a sweet voice though not powertul, and sang her part very nicely. Mr. Turner has a grand tenor voice, and rendered the part of Thaddeus, in the "Bohemian Girl" and Manrico in "Il Trovatore" in an admirable manner. Mr. Connell, the basso, and Mr. Harmon, the baritone, also acted and sang well. Prof. W. W. Keenan, the musical director, ably supported the company at the piano. The troupe was far above any opera company that ever visited our town, and the performance was a grand musical treat to all who heard it. If the people of Bloomsburg want good entertainments they should patronize them when they have the opportunity.

Rev. John S. Stahr, Ph. D. of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., assisted the pastor of the Reformed church of this place in the celebration of the Holy Communion last Sunday, preaching the sermon for the occasion. He also preached in the evening to an attentive audience on "The Necessity on the part of the Christian Church to Provide for Liberal Education in our Land."

Dr. Stahr is professor of natural science, chemistry and the German language in the above named college. He is at present canvassing the Reformed church in the interest of the college which he represents, seeking to increase the endowment of said institution, the Board of Trustees having appointed him to this work for the current year. In the prosecution of his mission he was in attendance upon the sessions of the Synod of the Reformed church held at Sunbury, Pa., from Wednesday of last week until Tuesday the 25th inst. At the earnest solicitation of the pastor of the Reformed church of this place, who was formerly a student under Dr. Stahr, for four years in Franklin and Marshall College, he kindly consented to spend Sunday at Bloomsburg, as the guest of his former pupil, and to preach, which latter he did much to the delight and edification of the audiences that heard him. He returned to Sunbury on Monday morning.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Oct. 25, 1887.

In writing for Dress Goods be careful to state what sort of dress you wish.

The Black Dress Stuffs. No striking newness to name; old favorites, often with each old goodness made better; a falling off nowhere.

Henriettas were at first used only as morning stuffs. Many women think that is their limit now. Wrong. We sell most Henriettas for out of mourning wear. A silk-and-wool stuff. Softness and delicacy of the finest wool; springy, crisp toughness of the silk. A mixed fabric with none of the faults of mixed fabrics. 85c to $4. Below $1, 36 in.; above, 40 in.

Drap d'Alma. Another of Priestley's and another favorite. Simple elegance in the fine diagonal lines. Silk-and-wool, $1.25 to $2.50; all-wool, 75c to $2.

Camel's-hair will be at the front this season, especially for shopping wear. Priestley's Camel's-hair Serge is a quick friend-getter; 44 in., $1 to $4.

Three styles of silk-and-wool Camel's-hair Diagonals from the famous Bradford maker. Didn't exactly hit the popular taste. That is why the price is down from $2.50 to $1.25.

Full lines of Lupin's Merinos are here; 36 to 46 in., 50c to $1.75.

Cashmeres, best makes, 50c to $1.75.

Alpacas are again coming into favor for dresses; 25c to $1.

Two Dress stuffs that we cannot well say too much for.

A fine all-wool, Habit Cloth. Not a scrimp about it. From the fleece to the dye every step taken with extra care. A stuff that shows its bringing up. Warmth with lightness; a soft, perfectly finished surface on good, strong, well-spun, well-woven yarn. There are plenty of other stuffs as good, plenty better, but we believe this to be the best for the money that you have ever had a chance to buy. 50 in., 50c. Blues, browns, greens, garnets, brown and gray mixed, blue mixed.

Grouped hair line-stripes forming plaids on ground splashed with parti-colored silk noils. A striking, likeable fabric. Full of life and snap, as stuffs go. A just-in newness; made to our order. 8 styles, each with a new beauty. A regular $1 material—better than many you think a quick dollar's worth. 54 in., 75c.

Some of the very little-priced Dress Stuffs. A surprise in every yard.

Good, neat Plaids, fit for remodeling dresses, for children's school dresses, or for any common wear. 20c. Variety of styles and colors.

Handsome half-wool Satin Diagonals, Brocades, Cashmeres, 12½c.

A good, hard-twisted, well-wearing Plaid, 28 in., 15c. The plaid effect comes mainly from bunchy dabs of colored threads on a cheerful ground. Looks to be worth twice the price. Maybe it is.

Three from fifty or a hundred.

Coats, Wraps, Jackets, Raglans, and what not for women's outside wear. Thousands of styles. Newest stuffs, shapes and shades. Fresh and bright—not a musty, trumpery thing in the lot.

Neither the assortment nor the prices can be matched in town.

Judge by these:

English Plaid and Check tailor-made Jackets, open seams, $2.50. With satin-lined hood, $3.

Tailor-made Stockinet and Berlin Twill Jackets, open seam; brown, blue, black, $2.50.

Newmarkets, Plaids and Checks, with cape, $6.50; black diagonals, $4.

74 Brown Beaver Newmarkets, with cape, satin-faced, $10; all sizes.

Raglans, English Plaids and Checks, $8.

Beaver and Diagonal Wraps, Astrakan trimming, $3.50.

Our special real Lister Seal Cloth Long Coats, Wraps, and Jackets, satin-lined:

Long Coats, real seal trimming, $17.50.
Wraps, ball trimming, $12.
Jackets, real seal trimming, $10.

We guarantee quality, workmanship, fit and price; as well made as any of our $100 garments.

The Linen tide. At full flow with all the flaxen whiteness and brightness of the Old World—the Linen world.

The goods and the prices are doing it. These are some of the special things we are selling. Such worth in Linens we think has never before been offered for the money.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

2000 dozen Women's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, new patterns, $1.30 a dozen.
1000 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs worth 25 cents each, $1.80 a dozen.
1000 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, choice patterns, $3 a dozen.
500 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, extra quality, $6 a dozen.
1 case Men's heavy Linen Handkerchiefs, slightly imperfect, various qualities, 12½ cents each.
1 case similar goods, extra size 15 cents each.

Cases of all sorts of White Linen Handkerchiefs hemmed and hemstitched.

1 case Women's old-fashioned Handkerchiefs, 40 and 60 cents a dozen.

TOWELS.

3000 dozen Huck Towels at $1.00 a dozen.
2500 dozen Huck Towels at $1.30 a dozen.
2000 dozen Huck Towels at $1.50 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $1.80 a dozen.
3000 dozen Huck Towels at $2.16 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $2.40 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $2.64 a dozen.
2000 dozen Huck Towels at $3.00 a dozen.
3000 dozen Damask Towels at 15 to 25 cents each.
10 cases Imported White Turkish Towels at 22 cents each, worth 35 cents.
1 case Imported White Turkish Towels at 25 cents each, worth 50 cents.
1 case Imported Striped Turkish Towels at 25 cents each.
Linen Turkish Towels.
Fancy Turkish Towels.

F. M. Leader, Superintendent of B. & S. Railroad.

Mr. F. M. Leader was elected Superintendent of the Bloomsburg & Sullivan Railroad, by the Board of Directors at a meeting held October 17th. The syndicate of Philadelphia, who furnished most of the money for the construction of the road sent Mr. Leader here about the middle of September, with instructions to get everything in readiness for operating the road. The task of getting a new road in working order is not a small one; working the schedules for trains, the rate of fare, the rate of freight, the special excursion trains and other things incident to a new road, not yet completed. But with the rich experience of Mr. Leader under the system of the Pennsylvania railroad, he grasped the work and has the road in nice working order. The handling of the great crowds of people during the Benton and Bloomsburg fairs, without a single accident, speaks well of his ability as Superintendent. Mr. Leader began the railroad business at Altoona when but a boy, and has been trained up in all the branches of the Pennsylvania system, filling the several positions with entire satisfaction. A few years ago he accepted a responsible position in the South, which he held for three years, but was obliged to relinquish it on account of ill health of himself and family. His railroad experiences covers a period of some twenty-two years. Mr. Leader will shortly bring his wife (formerly Miss Mary Van Buskirk of this place) to this town. It will be a source of pleasure to Mrs. Leader and her many friends here to have her once more located in the town of her childhood.

Notice to Tax Collectors.

An act of the Legislature and approved June 2nd 1881, (See pamphlet laws, page 45) requires tax collectors, township and borough officers to make return of seated and unseated lands upon which no property can be found from which to make taxes, to the County Commissioners on or before the first day of January next, with a sufficient description by boundaries or otherwise, of each separate lot or tract and about the quantity of the same. Those who fail to make returns by said day will be held for such loss. Taxes so returned become a lien against the property so returned. We have blanks on which these returns are to be made and will furnish them upon application of collectors.

Salmi Morse's Passion Play.

THE DOWNFALL OF THE ACTORS WHO WERE CAST TO TAKE PART IN IT.

There is a man peddling about the streets of Shamokin who a few years ago was cast for the role of the Beloved Disciple in Salmi Morse's Passion Play. This man has concluded that the judgment of God rests on all persons connected with the attempt to produce the piece in New York City. Wannamacher, who was to take the character of "Christ," has degenerated from an earnest apostle of temperance into a miserable drunkard. "Naomi," the virgin, is an abandoned woman in the great metropolis, while the slums have laid hold and dragged the majority of the chorus down to the depths of degradation.

Salmi Morse, the projector of the enterprise, became involved in a financial difficulty with a lewd woman and committed suicide.

Distress After Eating.

This result of indigestion will no longer be experienced if Simmons Liver Regulator is taken after each meal. It is such a good digester, and so mild and pleasant in its effect that it is used by many, after a hearty meal, to insure good digestion. The Regulator does not nauseate or irritate the stomach, but corrects acidity, dispels foul gases, allays irritation, and assists the stomach in its digestion.

TO PRESERVE NATURAL FLOWERS.—Dip the flowers in melted paraffine, withdrawing them quickly. The liquid should be only just hot enough to maintain its fluidity and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stocks and moved about for an instant to get rid of air bubbles. Fresh cut flowers, free from moisture, make excellent specimens in this way. If you would preserve your health and invigorate your entire system use Perrine's Pure Barley Malt Whiskey. For sale by C. WHAT AM I TO DO?—The symptoms of biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas; he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at it all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and diarrhœa or constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the stomach. To correct all this if not to effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

Ringing noises in the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

DRUNKENNESS OR LIQUOR HABIT POSITIVELY CURED BY ADMINISTERING DR. HAINES' GOLDEN SPECIFIC.—It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. IT NEVER FAILS. The system once impregnated with the Specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor habit to exist. For full particulars address Golden Specific Co., 185 Race St., Cincinnati, Ohio. dec 3 86 1y.

Sold into Slavery.

THE REMARKABLE STORY OF A CALIFORNIA WAITER.

H. Benedict, a waiter in a Main street restaurant, says the Los Angeles Times, only reached this city a short time ago. He has just escaped from a life of slavery, that is according to his story, a hundred times more severe in every respect than were the old slavery days before the war.

"Almost six years ago," Mr. Benedict relates, "when I was a waiter in a San Francisco restaurant, I walked down to the water front and was watching the ships discharge, when a stranger approached and asked me to take a walk. After having a little conversation with me he learned that I wished to leave the city, and he told me that he was friendly with a number of people in Honolulu, and that he was confident that I could get work as soon as I reached the islands. I met him the next day and he informed me that he had secured thirteen others who would go and he introduced me to several of them. We all thought it a good chance to get out of California for a while, especially as our passages were to be paid, and we sailed on a schooner under a Captain Myers. When we reach the islands we did not go into port, but stopped outside.

A steam launch was soon alongside and a man, who represented himself to be a doctor, came aboard. He and the captain were closeted for quite a while, when the doctor came aft and gave each one of us a medical examination. The captain and doctor then left the ship and a few hours later we weighed anchor and for two days we were sailing in and out among islands. Finally we were landed at a large sugar plantation and given to understand that we were to work in the field. We learned the next day that the plantation was owned by two men who were considered the hardest taskmasters on the islands. We were told that we had been employed through the captain, and that we were to get $50 a month. We hesitated about going to work at first, but the foreman talked very nice to us, and after we had worked a month we went to the foreman's office to draw our pay. Here we were horrified to learn that we had been sold to the sugar planters as slaves for so much a head; that it would take us just three years to buy our freedom, if we worked every day. We were credited with 25 cents a day when we worked, and when we were too sick to work they charged us seventy-five cents a day for board. They paid so much for us, and we had to work our freedom out at the rate of 25 cents a day, and under the laws of the island we agreed to this contract the first day we worked—as going to work with our own free will signifies that we were willing to work for the planters for our passage to the islands. Well, we made a hard kick against such treatment, but there was no help for it, as the plantation was guarded by a company of native soldiers who were only too willing to shoot a white slave who attempted to escape.

"When we refused to work we were placed in stocks and whipped until the blood streamed off our backs. When a man wanted to lay off because of sickness a plantation doctor was called in and, and if the doctor said he was not sick the fellow was either whipped or killed. I have known them to take a man out and shoot him because he could not work. A man was taken violently sick one day but the doctor said he was all right, and the overseer made him go to the field. He struggled along until about noon, when he dropped down dead. We were worked ten hours a day and no set of men were ever worked harder in the world. After I had been there three years I thought my time was up, but I had a surprise in store for me in the shape of a bill the company had against me for eating sugar cane and playing sick. The overseer had charged me with every mouthful of sugar cane I ever ate, and it took me just two years more to work it out at the rate of two bits a day. I never ate any more sugar cane, and as goon luck would have it, I was not sick. It took me just five years and a few weeks to work out, and if I had to tell you what I suffered during that time you would wonder that I am alive to-day. People might live in Honolulu a life time and never know anything about the slave system that is being carried on in the Sandwich Islands."

Cider in Various Forms.

A NEW JERSEY INNKEEPER GIVES AWAY THE OCCULT SECRETS OF HIS MYSTERIOUS CRAFT.

Sweet cider? Yes sir. Here you are."

A New York tourist was spending a day in a primitive New Jersey hamlet, and inquired at the village inn for a glass of that famous Jersey beverage.

"That's good. Just made, wasn't it?"

"Lemme see. John, when was this cider made?"

John replied from the lower end of the room that it was made a little over two years ago.

"Guess you're right, John," returned the innkeeper. "You ought to know, as you put it up yourself."

"How did you manage to keep it sweet so long?"

"Easy enough; I put into a barrel full of sweet cider a quart of milk, about a half a pint of mustard seed—the black seed—and six eggs. Mix them all up together and pour them in the barrel. Cider will keep sweet that way for a half a dozen years. I think it gets better and sweeter the longer you keep it. I have another kind of cider you may want to taste."

The tourist did want to taste it, and the innkeeper fished out from a gloomy and cob-webby depths of a sub-counter closet, a quart bottle which bore such marks of age as would have made the mouth of an epicurean wine bibber water with anticipated delight. The cork came out with a mighty pop, and a fine spray filled the air with mist and the aromatic fragrance of champagne.

"Try a glass of that," said the innkeeper, as he filled two glasses with the sprinkling fluid. The tourist needed no urging.

"Why, that doesn't taste like cider, neither is it champagne, exactly. What do you call it?"

"Cider."

"How did you make it?"

"I bottled it three days ago. It was fresh, sweet, strained cider then. I put in each bottle a couple of raisins and a small lump of rock candy, and if you can find any champagne that costs less than ten cents a bottle that will beat that I will buy a thousand cases of it."

"I should think it could be sold in some country places for champagne?"

"I've sold a good many hundred bottles of it."

"In what country town?" asked the tourist.

"In New York City."

Death to Old Age.

A BOSTON MAN REDISCOVERS A HARMLESS ANTIDOTE TO TIME.

The beau sex owes a debt of unspeakable gratitude to a Boston chemist for the discovery of a method whereby the female charms may be indefinitely preserved. Henceforth, remarks a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the dear creatures will suffer no annoyance from wrinkles or baldness, such affections being entirely done away with by the invention aforesaid. The agent employed to conceal—or, I should rather say, prevent—these ravages of time, is simply the oil of sheep's wool. It is obtained by steeping the clippings of the animal in hot alcohol. The "wool fat" being precipitated, appears in the shape of a beautiful yellow grease, which turns black on time, but never gets rancid. Its effect when applied to the cuticle is a most peculiar one, its substance being at once absorbed through the pores, and in this manner it acts directly as a nutrient of the fatty tissues underneath. Rubbed upon the skin of an infant, it produces an artificial plumpness, and a wrinkled surface to which it is applied soon becomes as smooth as a young girl's cheek. A certain elderly gentleman of my acquaintance, who still affects some of the virtues of youth, bought an ounce of the stuff a few weeks ago, and by using it conscientiously, has almost obliterated the crow's feet which had formed a network about his temples. The wool fat also prevents baldness, by supplying to the hair an element to its growth the lack of which causes it to wither and fall out. Like most new discoveries this marvel in the rapeutics is exceedingly ancient. It was known two thousand five hundred years ago to the Greeks and Romans under the name of "Oesipus," and was used by them to render supple the joints of competitors in athletic games. The same chemical substance, strange to say, is found in the shape of a fatty secretion of the human bile. It is obtained also, from peas, beans and other vegetables. Physicians use it as a base in the compounding of ointments, the medicinal ingredients of which are conveyed by its agency through the skin.

Since its virtues were known in her day, why should we not suppose that Helen of Troy, who at forty—when she was carried off by Paris—was the most beautiful woman of her time, employed some preparation of wool-fat to obliterate the marks of age. Who knows if the rounded charms of Cleopatra were not preserved by some such unpoetic means.

A Powerful Remedy.

In the village of O——, in Central New York, lives a sharp-tongued old bachelor whom I have known for twenty five years as "Uncle John." Uncle John is something of a character about town, and not destitute of Yankee wit and shrewdness. He used to make and vend in an amateurish way a certain cough mixture, the merits of which he preached to his friends with great enthusiasm, warranting the remedy to cure any cold in twenty-four hours "or no pay." One of his old friends, whom we will call Ike, being afflicted with a severe coughing cold, Uncle John used his best efforts in argument, persuasion and finally vehement and profane scolding, to get him to try the remedy. But Ike could not be induced to "chance it!" Not long after this Uncle John caught a hard cold himself, which was accompanied by a most distressing cough that shook his poor old frame unmercifully. It did not, however, prevent his coming down-town and "settin'," as he called it, in Ike's market. The cold hung on for a week or more, and the cough had grown no better. Finally one day Ike resolved to brave Uncle John's sharp tongue and tease him a little about his failure to rid himself of the cold, and the following dialogue ensued. You are to understand that Uncle John's replies were interrupted with violent coughing.

"John?"

"What yer want?"

"Got a bad cold, 'ain't ye?"

"Yes; got the wust ever had'n my life."

"Hangs on pretty bad, don't it?"

"Yes; bea's all h—l."

Hesitatingly, "Why don't you try some o' y'r cough med'cine you wanted ter sell me?"

"I thought mebbe y' was fool 'nough ter ask that question: d'yer s'pose I want ter live forever?" —EDITOR'S DRAWER, in Harper's Magazine for November.

Columbus and Vespucci.

There is also much to be said about the different way in which the letters of Vespucci and Clumbus would affect the literary taste of the age. As I have said, the letters of Columbus are infinitely more attractive to the reader of to-day. The devoutly religious spirit of the writer, his mingling of practical shrewdness with child-like credulity, his artless relations of the dreams and visions which induced him to set out on his discoveries, his enthusiastic belief in being divinely appointed to his work, his arguments to prove that he had landed near the Garden of Eden, expressed in that simplicity of style which is the chief grace of the early voyagers, all together form a charm for us that superior learning and more correct rhetoric cannot rival. But at the time when Columbus wrote we can believe that Vespucci's letters would more readily attract attention. The latter wrote a clear and succinct account of what he saw, of all he could learn of the manners and customs of the natives; he drew pictorial illustrations and diagrams; he used some bits of scholarship effectively; he quoted Aristotle and Pliny, and the immortal Dante. In fact, Vespucci's letters are more like those of a traveling journalist who is sent out by a daily paper or a current magazine, to get the latest and best news and put the narrative in popular form; Columbus writes like the man of imagination and poetic vision, the true discoverer and seer, who is recognized by the future, rarely by the present.—From "The Christening of America," by Abby Sage Richardson, in The American Magazine.

It was raining quite hard and one of the traveling men who was in the store wanted to go down street. Seeing an umbrella in the corner and desiring to borrow it he asked the clerk who was nearest it: "Is that your umbrella, Smith?" The clerk turned slowly on him, and after an impressive pause, said: "Mr. Seller, if there is anything I do despise, it's a suspicious, inquisitive nature."—Merchant Traveler.

Wife—"In the game of lawn tennis, my dear, what is the most difficult thing to acquire?" Husband—"The lawn."—Puck.

Leprosy in Louisiana.

Mr. Ely and the priest lodged in the house of one of the petits habitants. In the evening, when they were alone, the subject of leprosy came up.

"We hear at the North," said Mr. Ely, "vague accounts of the Terre des Lepreux, which is said to be somewhere in Louisiana. What truth is there in them?"

"They are no doubt greatly exaggerated," said Father Nedaud. "A spurious leprosy, elephatiasis, was so common among the negroes under the Spanish domination that Governor Miro founded a hospital for lepers near New Orleans, on the Bayon St. John. It has been gone these many years, and Lepers' Land is now built up with pretty houses. It was in the suburb Treme."

"The disease is extinct, then?"

"There were some cases of genuine Asiatic leprosy near Abbeville, in this parish, about twenty years ago. An old creole lady was the first. Her father doubtless brought the terrible taint in his blood from France. When the white scales appeared in her face her husband and family fled from her. There was a young girl, daughter of M'sieu Dubois, who went to her and nursed her alone during the three years in which she fought with death. Another of God's servants, m'sieu! Four of this old woman's children, who deserted her, became lepers The young girl who had nursed her, after she died married a young fermier, and lived happily in her little cabin with her husband and pretty baby. But one day a shining white spot appeared on her forehead. That was the end."

"She died?"

"M'sieu, after four years. There is no cure. It surely does not matter to her now by what road God called her to Him. There have been since then no lepers in this parish except in these tainted families. The real Terre des Lepreux in Louisianna is now on the lower Lafourche, below Harang's Canal. The bayou there is turbid and foul; it flows through malarious swamps lower than itself. The creole planters there are honest and temperate folk, but they are wretchedly poor. They raise only rice, and live on it and fish. The wet rice fields come up to the very doors of their cabins. The leprosy which certain families among them have inherited is developed by these conditions. Five years ago Professor Joseph Jones, president of the State Board of Health, went himself with his son to explore the cypress swamps and lagoons of the lower Lafourche. M'sieu, it is the region of the shadow of death. He found many poor lepers hiding there. They were as dead men who walk and talk. They could handle burning coals; they felt no longer cold nor heat nor pain. Their bodies were as corpses. One man lived alone in a hut, thatched with palmettoes, which he had built for himself, eating only the rice which he had planted. No man nor woman had come near him for years. The Terre des Lepreux extends as far as Cheniere Caminada, where the bayou empties into the Gulf."

Mr. Ely remained silent, though a torrent of angry queries rushed to his lips. Why was nothing done to mitigate the horrors of such a life-in-death? How could this priest, a man of God, so calmly discuss these poor accursed creatures from his safe, comfortable point of vantage, jogging on his easy-going mare from one farm to another? He bade him presently a rather curt good-night, and went to the loft where he was to sleep. When he came down in the morning, Pere Nedaud had gone.

"M'sieu," said his smiling host, "le pere haf lef' you bon-matin," waving his hand to the black figure passing southward far across the prairie—

"Where is his charge now?"

"M'sieu—" Gaspard paused a moment. "In hell, I think. It is near Cheniere Caminada, in la Terre des Lepreux."

Mr. Ely walked away from him, and paced up and down the levee for a long time.

"God forgive me!" he muttered to himself.—REBECCA HARDING DAVIS, in Harper's Magazine for November.

How to Stop Coughing.

In a lecture once delivered by the celebrated Dr. Brown-Sequard he gave the following directions which may prove serviceable to persons troubled with a nervous cough: "Coughing may be stopped by pressing on the nerves of the lips in the neighborhood of the nose. A pr ssure there may prevent a cough when it is beginning. Sneezing may be stopped by the same mechanism. Pressing also in the neighborhood of the ear may stop coughing. Pressing very hard on the top of the mouth inside is also a means of stopping coughing. And I may say the will has immense power, too. There was a French surgeon who used to say, whenever he entered the wards of the hospital; 'The first patient who coughs will be deprived of food to-day.' It was exceedingly rare that a patient coughed then."

A Deserted Town.

The best example of a deserted village known on the Pacific coast is Houston, Idaho. Three years ago it contained over five hundred inhabitants; now there are, all told, nine persons in the place. The town has a fresh and bright look. There is a handsome hotel on the main street; a big smelter is seen; there is a large brewery, and all along the principal streets stand neat stores, with fresh looking signs; but the people are gone, and all is silent. A newspaper outfit was collapsed before a paper was issued, and the owners of the material seem to have never since had money enough to pay the freight out. The town sprung up on the strength of a big copper prospect; the copper "failed," and the people skedaddled, many of them leaving behind furniture and all else except clothing and some light and valuable goods.

What They Should Say.

Somebody who thinks he knows all about it says: When a lady sitting for a picture would compose her mouth to a bland and serene character she should just before entering the room, say "Bosom," and keep the expression into which the mouth subsided until the desired effect in the camera is evident. If, on the other hand, she wishes to assume a distinguished and somewhat noble bearing not suggestive of sweetness, she should say "Brush," the result of which is infallible. If she wishes to make her mouth look small she must say "Flip," but if the mouth is already too small, and needs enlarging, she must say "Cabbage." If she wishes to look mournful, she must say "Kerchunk;" if resigned, she must forcibly ejaculate "S'cat." Ladies when having their photographs taken may observe these rules with some advantage to their appearances.

An Old Comstocker's Castle.

William von Eckhoff, formerly of Sazarac villa, on the Comstock, has purchased a mansion in Hamburg for 600,000 marks. His castellated residence dominates the town. Mr. Eckhoff is one of our mining princes. Billy, however, does not go back on the land that did not go back on him. He flies the American flag in faderland, and lives there in his native town as an American citizen. In defiance of Prince Bismark, American hog and hominy is a standing dish at his table. Old "Bis" has several times threatened to tell King William about this, but Mr. Eckhoff snaps his fingers at him, tells him that he and the king are namesakes, and that he will soon have "Unser Fritz" for a regular boarder.—Virginia City Enterprise.

The Hair Album Craze.

The latest craze among the young ladies is a "hair album"—gentlemen's hair. Young men are besought for a lock of hair, and the request is such a flattering one that they are only too happy to comply when the right damsels apply. The contribution is tied with a blue ribbon and goes into the "hair album" along with the hair of a crowd of other fellows. Over it will be written the name, age, color of eyes, date of receiving the memento, and general remarks as to personal appearance, etc., which may or may not be complimentary, as the album is never to be seen by any other than feminine eyes. The young ladies are as proud of their trophies as the Indian warrior is of the scalp he takes.—New York Telegram.

A New Postal Law.

A new postal law has just gone into effect which considerably curtails the privileges heretofore enjoyed by merchants and others in sending fourth class mail matter. It is to the effect that all fourth-class mail matter must hereafter bear only the name and address of the sender, in addition, of course, to the address to which it is sent. Heretofore senders have been allowed to put tags or business cards on, detailing their business, or naming the samples contained in the packages. If a printed line is on the wrapper first-class rates will be charged. This is important to the public, as a disregard of the regulation means a collection from the person to whom it is addressed.

A Necklace of Human Fingers.

A most peculiar and hideous decoration in the shape of a necklace, probably the only one of the kind in the world, has recently been added to the curiosities in the national museum, Washington. It consists of a cunningly wrought band of bead work dependent from which are eight shriveled human fingers with tips stained a dull ochre color. The necklace was the property of a Sioux medicine man and it is understood that each finger was cut from the hand of a different victim.

Interfering With the Bible.

A farmer stood at the Ithaca gas well yesterday and sadly declared it was just ruining bible prophecy to dig such things. On being asked to explain he said: "If the oil and gas is all pumped out of the earth, don't it stand to reason that there will be nothing left inside for the final burning up of the world? It is just spoiling bible prophecy, and ought to be stopped."—Elmira Gazette.

JAMES MEANS $3 SHOE,

Because it is made for men whose occupations are such as lead them to call for a lighter and more dressy shoe than the JAMES MEANS $3 SHOE. Our $3 shoe has established for itself a permanent reputation for comfort and durability such as no other shoe has ever known in the history of the trade. No competitors are able to approach it. The James Means $4 Shoe is light and stylish, and it is as durable as any shoe of its weight ever manufactured. We confidently assert that in every vital respect the James Means $4 Shoe is equal to the hand-sewed shoes which have hitherto been retailed at $6 or $7. It has a Dongola top and seamless calf vamp. It has a perfectly smooth bottom inside. It fits like a stocking, and requires no "breaking in," being perfectly easy the first time it is worn.

James Means and Co.'s Shoes were the first in this country to be extensively advertised. If you have been disappointed in other advertised Shoes, your experience ought to teach you that it is safer to buy shoes made by the leaders of a system, rather than those made by the followers. These shoes are sold by the best retailers throughout the United States, and we will place them easily within your reach, in any State or Territory, if you will send us a postal card.
